ROUND TABLE DISCUSSION ON INTERNATIONAL YOUTH DAY (ROLE OF YOUTH IN NATION BUILDING)

It is mentioned by the United Nations Organization (UNO) that, with the world's population expected to increase by 2 billion people in the next 30 years, it has become recognized by numerous stakeholders that simply producing a larger volume of healthier food more sustainably will not ensure human and planetary wellbeing. Other crucial challenges must also be addressed, such as the interlinkages embodied by the 2030 Agenda including poverty reduction; social inclusion; health care; biodiversity conservation; and climate change mitigation. It has been acknowledged that there is a need for inclusive support mechanisms that ensure youth continue to amplify efforts collectively and individually to restore the planet and protect life, while integrating biodiversity in the transformation of food systems.

This year the theme of International Youth Day 2021 has been recognized as the "Transforming Food Systems. Riphah Institute of Public Policy, Riphah International University organized a round table discussion to celebrate the International Youth Day. The heads of youth based groups/ organizations were invited to get their insight and vision for the cause of Youth. More than 20 organizational heads joins the discussion at ETB campus on 12th August 2021.

Dr Rashid Aftab welcomes the audience and introduced the initiatives of the Riphah Public Policy and its interventions for the capacity building of youth. He said, Youth is one of the great assets of the nation and the future of Pakistan belongs to this portion of the nation. They must have a vision to serve the nation with solid ideas, innovative techniques and economically viable solutions for the development of the nations. He further added that, we have a very glorious past and we can learn the ways and strategies adopted by the rulers, academicians, scholars and activists of that time. Past is best to learn for the future strategies. He emphasized, past is not for to live but to learn.

Young participants stressed the importance of inclusive development plans, entrepreneurship initiatives, political vision, inclusion of youth in policy making, innovative solutions, utilization of social capital, observance of social, religious practices in government initiatives, and more sports activities for a healthy nation. In addition, they highlighted the need for youth to be active in portraying the better image of the nation at virtual world. Youth must be enlightened enough to observe and differentiate between the propaganda and reality. It was also suggested in the session that, a youth focus group is need of the hour to help and advise the government and policy makers on the issues faced by the youth strata of society.

Mr Kashif Zaheer (Faculty Member RIPP) assembled and moderated the session of more than 20 youth based organization. Dr Sidra Ch, Zaman Bajwa, Jalal Sherazi, Qaiser Khattak, Mian Abdul Qadeer, Qurat ul Ain, Zafar Qureshi, Sajjad Mehar, Adil Abbasi, Babar Rahi, Eizam Ch., Ahmad Khan, Rehan Zaib Khan, Awais Sattar, and Raja Nijabat Hussain join the deliberation at the campus.

LAHORE I AM COMING: AN ECHO FROM THE PAST

Muhammad Karim Akhtar

Poetry, perhaps one of the oldest genres of literature, transcends history and philosophy. As Sir Philip Sidney in his Defence of Poesy illustrates that it must be revered for its antiquity.

The poet being an emotional custodian of the art and culture reinvents history through his language. Lahore, I am Coming is Rizwan Akhtar's first collection of poems, and most of the poems reverberate the past civilization of the subcontinent, the Moghul art and architecture, culture and geography. It also echoes the ravages of colonialism on culture and traditions of the sub-continent.

The inclusion of the images of various places of Lahore particularly Moghul art and architecture reflects his belongings and association with Lahore. As the title suggests, it seems that the poet being an exotic addresses the city about his coming. In his poems, history like language is everywhere. Akhtar's poetry encapsulates the sense of rich Moghul art. He makes a lot of allusions of Moghul art and architecture in his poetry, like The Royal Mosque and behind it The Dancing Girls' Bazar, Kamran's Bara Dari, Moghul's prisons inside the Fort, and most of the significant places of the city like mentioning of Mall Road, Zamzama, Oriental College, Lawrence Gardens and The Lahore Fort, and also an allusion of Waris Shah's Heer. The poet uses these allusions to revitalize the history as the past burst in suddenly in the present, seems that something is really there by not creating the feelings of hallucination. The poet enters the courtyard of the Badshahi Mosque and what he sees, the past reveals before his eyes: I entered the courtyard of the Badshahi Mosque See Moghuls sleeping on pillows made of Ghazals

The city becomes the epiphany for the poet who seeks an inspiration for writing poetry. Everything from the Moghul architecture sprouts language, rhythm, so germinate poetry. Poetry is in the bone marrow of the city. The city becomes poet's beloved, for everything becomes music, language and history either it is a raqasa or ajars, or the fallen leaves of the trees, as "leaves fall slowly as alphabets struggle on a plate growing distant stories". His language expresses rich and subtle meanings. The rhythmic structure of the Dancing Bazar produces a musicality in the environment composing a ghazal. The ghazal, language, emerges from the rhythm of dancer's feet – a wavy motion. The raqasa's dance is a reminiscent of long forgotten lustre of the Moghul court delighting the beholder. The representation of art through various images has an aesthetic effect which is the beauty of works of art.

The sense of longing and belonging, and sense of loss are the common themes along with other subject matters. Here, the poet feels a sense of loss of this kotha (residence of courtesans during Moghul Empire) culture that is permanently taken from us by the colonizers, a harsh consequence of colonialism in destroying subcontinent's culture. As poets are the unacknowledged legislators of the world, so Akhtar feels this sense of loss with sensitivity. There is an originality of metaphors and similes in Akhtar's poetry like "Lahore is absolutely unaware of the germs of poems, so many of them like sluggish sperm waste inside ovaries of suspicion". There is a sharp comparison between 'the germs of poems' and 'the sluggish sperms'. Both are the genesis of creation. It illustrates Lahore as a custodian – a city that is holding language and culture. The use of Urduized-English words (transliteration) such as "verandah, raqasa, Molvi, milky lasi, Mohalla, tasbih, Kurta, chai wala, gaachi, desi, etc." depicts the rich language and rich culture. Akhtar, a distinctive emerging poet in English language, introduces words from Urdu, Persian and Arabic, in his poems establishing his own identity, as the word raqasa has a complete history of Moghul era in it. The purpose of inclusion of words from Urdu, Persian, and Arabic in his poems is to rediscover the cultural past lost in colonial era. The remembrance of past and bringing it into his poetry is considered an act of resistance against the colonizers. Language sprouts from each and everything of this city, such is the connection between the text and the language that is very subtle in Akhtar's poetry like "dark flooding roads like pages", "last time we met the sea boiled over your sweltering tongue, monosyllabic", "languages floating on seas".

The poet uses his words in such a way as a farmer scatter seeds in the field and plants grow from those saplings, similarly, the poet's use of diction creates a new language – an idiom of his own, as.

The writer is a lecturer in English at Riphah Institute of Language & Literature (RILL), Riphah International University, Lahore.

RSWD ACTIVITIES

Qurbani Event:

On the third event of Eid-ul-Adha's distribution of sacrificial meat, Alhamdulillah, meat was distributed among those Riphah's employees who could not perform it, with the help of IIMCT respected faculty members and friends of RSWD. A cow was sacrificed, and a handsome quantity of meat was arranged in the Al Mizan campus. Alhamdulillah Qurbani meat was distributed by the Riphah Social welfare department among 96 deserving people in Al-Mizan on the 2nd day of Eid.

Qurbani at Tharparkar and Gumbat Kohat:

Besides this RSWD organized Qurbani events also in Tharparkar as last year. 3 cows were slaughtered with contributions of Riphah family and friends and their meat was distributed among the poor people of Tharparkar on the days of Eid.

More than 400 families received meat and they were very happy and prayed for success and prosperity Riphah. One cow was slaughtered in Gubat, Kohat. The meat was distributed among more than 50 deserving families.

Selection of the beneficiaries were mostly widows, orphans and disabled people who have no even access to a meal two times. Most people shared that today is the first time they are getting meat this year, because most of them belong to very poor families.

Fundraising Campaign:

Keeping in mind the lack of rains and other sources, many communities suffer not only for drinking purposes as well for vegetable growth and for the survival of their cattle. RSWD engaged in a clean drinking water project in Tharparkar. In this regard, RSWD collected Rs. 200,000/- for construction of one solar water well in village Nathro beel Paro and Diplo, Tharparkar.
