ORIENTATION SUMMARY

On 20th February, 2024, Department of Applied Psychology organized “BS Orientation Program Spring 2024” aimed an overall interaction of students with head of department, faculty members and coordination office of the department.

Moreover, the session involved introducing facilities for students in department creating an engaging and informative experience that familiarizes them with the resources available to support their academic journey. A well-executed introduction beginning by emphasizing the department’s commitment to provide a conducive learning environment was given by emphasizing on hands-on learning and research. Key facilities were highlighted such as classrooms, laboratories, libraries, and study areas, each tailored to meet specific academic needs. Engaging students through interactive orientation sessions will further enhance their understanding and Utilization of department facilities, empowering them to thrive academically and professionally.
